Tom Willacy Has Narrow Escape, Leg Is Injured Tom Willacy of Beacon street, is riding about town, with his leg in a cast—lucky that he's still alive.

SCHOOL NEWS

A committee of teachers is working on a system of merits and demerits for citizenship stand-ing in the three upper grades. It is hoped that this will lead to a more definite grading on the left hand side of the card.

Plans are being made for a party for children having perfect attend-ance during this term. It will prob-ably be held on the last Wednes-day of the month. The attendance record has been unusually good this term and it is expected that this will be our largest party so far.

Two teachers from the school acted as representatives of Tor-rance at a meeting held Tuesday at the 102nd street school. All schools of the district were repre-sented. The plans for continued tree-planting activities on our school grounds were launched.

Two more instruments from the orchestra department have been loaned to school children; a new cornet to Eric Chaplin and a vi-olin to Betty Stevenson.

When the report cards go out, a letter to the parents from the principal and faculty, containing information which will help them to understand conditions at the school more thoroughly, is also sent home with the children.

The Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs expect to present an opera "Boy Blue" on January 27 in the school auditorium. It will be given in the afternoon for the children and pa-rents who care to come. The plot tells of a lazy little boy nick-named "Boy Blue" by his friends. In a valiant effort to be on hand for a fishing trip, he spends the night in a hayfield. Although he is sure he has not slept, he sees many queer things during the night, of which he tells his play-mates when they find him.

Kenneth Fess is Boy Blue, and Helen Smith is Mollie. The farm-er boys and girls, fireflies, elves, musical frogs, katy-dids are other characters taken by the members of the two glee clubs. Mrs. Has-kin directs the boys' club and Mrs. Sweet the girls.
